Objective

To develop students' ability to critically read and analyze articles in the field of informatics and to write a concise and coherent article review.

Tasks

1. Select an article related to the field of informatics that is recent (published within the last 2 years).
2. Read the article carefully, taking note of the main points, arguments, and evidence presented.
3. Write a 1-2 page article review, summarizing the article and providing your critical analysis of its strengths and weaknesses. Your review should include the following sections:
 1. Introduction: Briefly introduce the article and its topic.
 2. Summary: Provide a brief summary of the main points and arguments presented in the article.
 3. Critical analysis: Analyze the article's strengths and weaknesses. Some questions to consider:
 - Does the author present a clear and convincing argument?
 - Are the evidence and examples presented relevant and effective?
 - Are there any weaknesses or limitations to the argument?
 - Are there any important points that the author did not address?
 4. Conclusion: Provide a conclusion that summarizes your analysis and your overall evaluation of the article.
4. Submit your article review for feedback and discussion in class.
